GOVERNOR TAFT SATISFIES ROME

His Work Regarding the Friars' Land Is Most Pleasing to the Pope.

Rome, Feb. 9.—Special.—The vatican emphatically denies all the rumors of Cardinal Rampolla's dissatisfaction regarding Gov. Taft's attitude in the Philippine questions. Dissatisfaction is felt at the vatican towards the arrangements initiated by M. Gild's predecessors with the mediators to whom, in addition to large salaries, they promised 25 per cent of the property the mediators should receive in retaining for the church. The effect of M. Gild's latest reports and mature consideration seem to have decided the vatican that the best solution is to return to the original proposition made by the United States to resort to arbitration for the purchase of the friars' lands, the settlement of the rentals, the indemnity for damage due from the United States, and the administration of the charitable and educational trusts. It is reported that the pope has always supported this solution.

FATE OF TEAM LIES IN CLOUGH

If the Manager of the R. B. & J. Interurban Will Build a Park, They Join the League.

C. J. McGinley expects within a day or two to receive a letter which will decide the fate of summer base ball in this city. He has written to H. H. Clough, who is now in the East, regarding the attitude which the R. B. & J. road would take toward the establishment of a park on the interurban route, preferably on the Curtis farm near Happy Hollow. This is the one condition which now stands in the way of securing a semi-professional nine which would place this city on the circuit with Racine, Kenosha, Elgin, Sycamore, Aurora and with the Marquette, Gunther, South Chicago, Spaulding and Athletic professional teams of Chicago.

A distinguished Paris physician was attracted by the hollow cough of an old rag-picker whom he found plying his trade on a damp November day in a suburb of the gay capital. "Ah! my poor friend," he said, "that is a bad cough, a very bad cough. You should pass the winter in the south of France, and, to avoid the dust and fatigue of a railway journey, I advise you to travel in your own carriage."

CHRIST LIFE IS NORMAL LIVING

BE HONEST, SIMPLE, SINCERE, IN SERVING GOD.

THE WORLD NEEDS SUCH LIVES

Rev. Robert C. Denison Preaches a
Masterly Sermon on the Simplicity of Faith.

Rev. Robert C. Denison spoke to a large congregation at the Congregational church Sunday morning on the simplicity of faith. For his text he took a portion of the twenty-second verse of the sixth chapter of Matthew: "If thine eye be single, thy whole body shall be full of light," and his sermon was an earnest, eloquent plea for honest, sincere, straightforward Christian living. He construed the Christian life to be the normal, genuine life, the only life, really worth living.

In these days the world is interested in specialists. The mission of Christ is not narrowed by the statement that Christ is the soul specialist, the life specialist. When man wants to build a bridge he goes to a bridge builder and in precisely the same way as if he wants to know how to live the best life, to construct a sane, simple, true character, he should go to Christ. The principles of living are to be found in Him.

Christ Not An Idealist

The beauty of Christ is that he is not merely a theorizer, dreaming out beautiful ideals for others, but he lived the life himself. When one looks at his life, preeminent in its simple record and sees his genuine, heroic, godly life reproduced in others he has steady ground for confidence in such a life.

What is meant by the single eye in the text? The person who has a single, straightforward, sincere and honest purpose to live as God wants him to live, to fulfill the mission God puts him here for, has the single eye. The beauty of the eye is that it fulfills the law of its own being. It has but one thing to do—to be a eye. God has a purpose for man as truly as for the eye. In so far as one resolves to do day by day, what God put him here for does he find the true life.

Some Men's Views

It is sad to meet men who think they can't be Christians because they have different ideas from some of the people in the church. It is startling to come back from the world's constructions and the arguments over doctrinal trifles to what Christ himself says: He makes singleness of purpose the foundation of Christian living. When men, through with excuses and fighting over trifles and face the real issue, it is strange how these things sink into insignificance.

Every city has two classes of men, the loafers and the laborers. One has no purpose in his eye, the other is always doing something definite. One pulls down the city's life and is a drag on its civilization. The other builds up the city and advances its interests. One has no definite aim, the other has the single eye of an honest worthy purpose.

Questions That Confuse

Many people evade the real issue of becoming a Christian by talking of the short comings of church members, the escapades of deacons' daughters and ministers' sons and the parts of the Bible which they cannot understand, such as the story of Jonah. The question of Christ cuts clear through all such subterfuges. Is thy eye single? Have you the purpose to live the best life? That is the real heart of the matter.

When confronted with the real simplicity of the issue, many men say that they can't put aside these great doctrinal questions and simply begin to live the Christ life. They must think and solve the mysteries of the Bible first. Unanswered questions and difficulties sweep into every man's life but the man who is most liable to solve the questions is not the one who sits down in despair and gives up trying to live the Christian life. The only way to solve them is to go forth in the opportunities of God's world and live the Christian life. By the Christian life is meant the normal, sincere, beautiful, God-serving life.

The Real Christian

Who is the Christian? Don't let men deceive with their discussions. Go back to Christ and his simple statement that God put us here to live sincerely. One message from Christ rings simple, pure and true through all the ages, the call to daily service. Men are not asked to endorse things which their reason and conscience refuse to accept, but they are asked to do those things which conscience and reason do endorse.

If a man asks his reason it is right for him to begin to be just as earnest and generous a man as possible, surely his reason will tell him that it is the only right thing to do. There is no life but sincere and genuine rectitude under God's purpose.

Like As A Father

If a child takes imperfect work to its father and says honestly, "did my best and did it for you," no true father will notice the imperfections. Rather he will take the child in his arms and bless him. When man takes his imperfect life to God and says "I tried to do my best," God does not stop to look at the imperfections. The results of right doing and of pure, clean living come more quickly than the returns from any business investment. God's blessing is not deferred for some far away heaven, but the reward comes at once in happiness, peace and liberty of spirit.

What the world needs are lives that ring like trumpet call with a sincere and honest looking up toward God. How can people face the needs of the world today and live anything except the life that God put them here for?

His Own Master

The day of the absolute monarchy is rapidly passing but there is one monarchy which will never be shaken. In his own soul every man is absolute monarch, master of his own destiny. Every man can control himself and go forth with the purpose to live simply, honestly, plainly, frankly, day by day in the service of the King.

GOOD WORK DONE BY STUDENTS

They Have Made a Brass Gavel for the Six O'clock Club Dinner.

The manual training class at the high school has outdone all their former efforts in the gavel line, in one which will be presented to the leader of the Madison Six O'clock club at their meeting in this city on Tuesday evening by Judge C. L. Field.

The gavel in this case is of solid brass, and has a coating of nickel overlaid with a coating of silver, which gives it a handsome finish. All the work was done in the manual training department and shows great proficiency in metal turning. The head and handle are ornamented with handsome designs and rings. One face of the gavel will bear the word "Twilight" and on the other will be "Six O'Clock."

Plans Made

Judge Field will present the gavel to the presiding officer of the Six O'Clock club as a token from the manual training department, when he turns the meeting over to them tomorrow evening.

Many Coming

It is now expected that about one hundred and twenty members of the Six O'Clock club will be present at the meeting and take part in the discussion of the topic: "The Negro Problem."

On A Special

The Madison delegation will have a special train which leaves there about 4:45 and will arrive in Janesville shortly before six. They will be met at the station by a delegation from the Twilight club and escorted to the Y. M. C. A. building where the banquet will be served.

...Forty Years Ago...

Janesville Daily Gazette, Monday, February 9, 1863.—We learn that a serious fire occurred in Beloit, yesterday at four o'clock in the morning. All the buildings between Durhams block and Collin's block, nine business places were consumed. Most of the movable property was saved. The buildings burned were mostly wooden structures, of no very great value except one brick store, which had been built a number of years. We are unable to learn the extent of the loss or the origin of the fire.

Our offices caught fire yesterday morning, and the result came near being quite serious. Adam Skelly one of the composers, went into the office about ten o'clock in the forenoon and attempted to build a fire in the stove. Not succeeding very well, he poured some benzole from a can upon a stick of wood. The blaze was communicated to a heap of papers near the stove. The fire was soon subdued by the efforts of Mr. Skelly and others who were attracted by the alarm of fire, the can of benzole having meantime exploded.

We have advices from our fleet at Vicksburg to Sunday morning. Preparations for a great demonstration were in progress. The water is running through Farragut's ditch, or canal, as it is called, at a slow rate. It is about five feet wide. Efforts are being made to deepen it. It is about one mile and a half long, and only about half of it is commanded by the enemy's guns.

IN MAN'S DIRE HOUR OF NEED

GOD, OTHERS, SELF, ARE THREE SOURCES OF STRENGTH.

SERMON BY REV. HENDERSON

Discourse at the Presbyterian Church on Sunday Morning, Told of Power of Prayer.

Prayer as a source of strength was the theme of the discourse which was delivered by the Rev. J. T. Henderson in the Presbyterian church on Sunday morning. Scriptural suggestion for the development of the subject was taken from the gospels according to Mathew and Luke. The passages selected referred to the sufferings of Christ on the last night before his crucifixion, when he took his disciples upon the mount with him but found them unable to lessen his mental torture in the supreme moments of his anguish. Then his only recourse was to pray that he might be able to bear the cross which was about to be placed upon him.

Two of the textual references were taken from the twenty-sixth chapter of Mathew, the thirty-seventh and fortieth verses.

Proof of the transcending power of prayer in those moments of extreme weakness, when man must turn to some external source to secure renewal of his strength, was the burden of the pastor's scholarly address. He earnestly pleaded for a stronger and more implicit faith in prayer, not only in the hour of need, but as a means of returning thanks to God for the blessings which he daily bestows.

In Need Of Strength

Man is not sufficient unto himself. It is the experience of all that at times he must have recourse to some external source, and there are but three. These are God, others and himself. To the casual thinker it might seem that the reverse order would more accurately express the succession in which the three are called upon for aid, but more careful analysis shows that God is always first. In fact, all three are included in the one God.

On that wonderful night when Christ was in his greatest need, and was praying not alone for himself, but for the whole world, the three men who had been his close companions were the ones upon whom he first called for strength and consolation, he found that no human aid was sufficient for his great need. In the end he was obliged to turn to His Father in prayer.

Careful study of the life of Christ shows an unusual degree of importance which was attached to prayer. It was the inspiration of many of his parables and sermons.

Prayer, said the speaker, is the greatest problem that presents itself in this universe. Many questions present themselves. Will God hear the pleadings of all of his children? Will he listen to the tale of the infinitesimal worries which come to every man? Does he stand ready to respond to each call for aid? To all of these questions Christ's teachings permit the response of an unfaltering yes.

Privilege of Prayer

If there is any truth in God's word man has a right to pray. The relation of child to father warrants the use of the privilege of prayer. The filial connection permits confidence that the petitions will be heard.

In the end the purpose of prayer is to submit the will of the suppliant to that of the Heavenly Father. The account of Christ's suffering in the garden supports this conclusion. In his first request the Savior asked that the passion which he was about to undergo might pass from him. But after that his petition became, "Nevertheless, not my will, but they will be done." And God's will was done. Even his own Son's first wish was not granted.

But through the medium of prayer Jesus became resigned to his lot, and his will became subordinate to that of God.

After all, said Rev. Henderson, the highest form of prayer is not that of supplication, but of thanksgiving. Then it is that he will of the mortal is most thoroughly submissive to that of God. Often the wayward son calls upon his father for money or help, only to squander the means so generously given, and after prayers directed to God are not dissimilar in nature.

WONDERFUL "SALLY IN OUR ALLEY"

New York's Latest Hit at Myers
Grand Thursday Evening of This Week.

Manager George W. Lederer has given another turn to his kaleidoscopic musical comedy. In his latest harmonious triviality "Sally in Our Alley," which will be seen at Myers Grand next Thursday. In this play of tune and rapid action, the new forms which his familiar bits of melody, mirth, movement and color have assumed are grouped in new poses, and in a way follow out new story in an entirely different atmosphere from that of its predecessors. It has myriads of pretty girls, who are always graceful and at ease, whose cheeks blaze with natures coloring in the whirl of the dance, and whose eyes flash with the excitement of public applause. It has clever actors and actresses, a host of comedians of special characterization, many trained singers, a whole banquet of jolly music made effective by ingenious "business," and a background of beauty and bright color for which this past master of light musical shows has a reputation second to that of no other producer of this class of entertainment. George V. Hobart is the author of the book, and Ludwig Englehardt is the musical composer. There is a plot in which the scores of musical and character specialties are strung. The story concerns the love affairs of Sally the daughter of the proprietor of a "heterogeneous emporium." She is a young New York girl of today, who lives on the east side or poorer section of Gotham. She is a pretty, vivacious and unconventional and has in some way been given the nickname from which the piece takes its title. Her father "Izzy" keeps a shop where one can buy and sell everything. In to this establishment the various characters from the Bowery or Fifth avenue, incidentally furnishing an abundance of local color to the stage scenes. It is here that the fashionable contingent of the cast, headed by Mrs. Marigold of the "smart set," throng in search of a green silk dress, which Mrs. Marigold gave to her maid, who sold it to the second-hand dealer, who, in turn, gave it to his pretty daughter, Sally, as a present. Unfortunately, in the pocket of this dress was some love letters which the amorous and usually discreet matron would not have any one read for the world. This is but sample of the humorous incidents of the play, which Mr. Lederer has worked into as pretty and as jolly a piece nonsense set in as brilliant a kaleidoscope of color as ever marked his old time days when fun and frolic ran riot at the Casino. One of the many scenes included in the two acts of "Sally in Our Alley" is laid in a fashionable Fifth avenue drawing room, where all the beautiful chorus girls are given an opportunity to display their family heirlooms, in the way of diamond tiaras and ropes of pearls. The company includes about one hundred people, among them being Junie McCree, Richard F. Carroll, George Schiller, Frank Farrington, Harry Fairleigh, Trixie Friganza, Margaret Marston, Catherine Lewis, Caroline Heutis, and Tessie Mooney.

The Vendetta

To be presented here by a strong company Feb. 11th. Mr. Gilbert Faust, Miss Eva N. Carr, and a splendid company will present Mario Corlelli's exquisite romance here Feb. 11 and it should prove one of the best attractions of the season.

The scenes of "The Vendetta" are laid in Naples during the time of the great plague in the 17th century. Fabio Romani, a young noble, is living on the outskirts of the city in their villa, and is the happiest of men, surrounded as he is by his beautiful and loving wife Nina, their little daughter, and a very dear friend, Guido Farrari. Fabio, Guido and Nina visit the city one day, and in going to the aid of a stricken boy, Fabio is himself overcome by the plague. It transpires that Nina, who is as false as she is beautiful, is enamored of Guido, and is anxious to have Fabio out of the way. The opportunity presents itself when Fabio is stricken with the plague, for though not dead, but merely unconscious, he is buried alive in his family vault by the order of Guido Farrari.

The horror at his awakening, bursting the lid from his coffin, and his frantic efforts to escape from the tomb make one of the most thrilling and fascinating scenes ever pictured on the stage. His final escape and return home, where he discovers the faithlessness of his wife and treachery of his friend, his pursuit of vengeance and his ultimate reward, all afford opportunities that are unsurpassed in dramatic force.

The play throughout is spectacular and beautifully costumed, appropriate to the period. While often weird and tragic, it also abounds in rich humor and brilliant satire.

IS THE DISCOVERY OF GOLD IN A WEAK NATION A MISFORTUNE TO THE PEOPLE THEREOF?

One writer says: "The discovery of gold in a weak nation is a misfortune to the people thereof." There is no more truth in this assertion than at first thought would seem. No doubt had it not been for the rich gold deposits discovered in South Africa there would have been no war there. The Boers would now be living a contented people and there would be thousands of homes in old England where the sorrow would not be so great as it is in consequence of that war for greed.

We the United States of America, took no part on the battle fields in that terrible war, and a majority of the people of this great nation were inclined to practice the golden rule with such home sympathy as they possessed, nevertheless we supplied the British army with canned goods and kicking mules. So the two South African republics have been squelched out from the family of nations, and are under the crown of England as colonies, and at a cost of blood and treasure that "stagger humanity." The gold standard overcame the golden rule.

Look at the valuable gold mines in Venezuela yet undeveloped, and glance at the large possibilities in agriculture, etc. Here is another weak nation struggling against the greed of two great nations, revolution is already on. There is not stability enough in that government to depend on meeting public debts, but there is wealth enough in her undeveloped mines so that John Bull and his nephew are expending millions of money in their attempt to collect a few thousand gold standard dollars. If it were not for the rich deposits of gold the chances are that he golden rule of peace and arbitration would prevail to the interest of all concerned. If The Hague arbitrators decide that John and William had a right to collect their debts of Venezuela, how can such a decision be carried out? None save to seize the country and collect the revenues, but the Monroe proposition seems to stand as a barrier in favor of the golden rule. It may be on trial—this Monroe doctrine—through this complication down in South America, who can tell?

The South American republics from Old Mexico to Cape Horn seem to look upon the Monroe doctrine more as a menace than a protection, but nevertheless, the Monroe doctrine is a bar to British greed and in favor of the golden rule. Again the allied powers cannot collect their debts in the South American republics by force of arms unless they can have some of Uncle Sam's mules and food products.

No doubt the English people, after their experience in South Africa, who will not care to add Venezuela as another colony to the British empire by force of arms, even though there is gold in sight. Without doubt England and Germany might be willing for the United States to step in and establish a stable government in Venezuela that would protect the right of property and pursuit of happiness, pay the debts of that republic and control the gold mines, rubber plantations, etc., and place her on a gold standard basis, and so far as possible to inaugurate the golden rule there.

I reckon we have all the stable government business on our hands at present that we can well attend to under the combined golden rule and our recent gold standard measures, both in our own country and our recent possessions. We don't want any more new possessions unless they come to us without fighting for them even through gold in undeveloped mines are known to be there.

We have plenty of gold mines in our own territory, that have scarcely been touched yet. Besides we get more than our share of the world's gold because we produce so many things that all nations must have. We loan gold to the governments of Europe with which to create and equip war implements. A war and we draw the gold back in exchange for food products. After all said and done gold has little value except its monetary value. Law, custom and common consent gives to gold its monetary value. Some financiers are concerned for fear that here is danger that the world's credits will be distributed by the over production of gold. We know that the production of gold during the last eight or ten years in proportion to population has been the largest ever known in the history of the civilized world, and it will be hard to estimate what the increase will be during the next decade.

New gold mines and new methods of reducing and extracting low grade ores that had no value ten years ago have added immense quantities of gold to the world's storehouse.

Twenty years ago under the old methods of mining the gold mines of South Africa had no value; now their values can hardly be estimated and it is said that there is $2,500,000.00 of gold in sight in South Africa.

As yet only a part of the earth's surface has been prospected for gold. Nearly every month we get prospectus of some new mining proposition every one of which promises fabulous dividends to stock holders.

So far as is known at this time the United States government has the largest store of gold of any government in the world, so if any government on earth can afford to be magnanimous and apply the golden rule, our government surely can.

Uncle Sam can build the Panama canal without running into debt one dollar and then have enough free gold to meet all the outstanding obligations of the government.

Since this great sovereign decided to have a gold standard for a money basis, and at the same time continue to coin silver and issue greenbacks and make every dollar redeemable in gold, why not stop coining gold into money? Why not store the bullion in safety vaults and issue gold certificates and redeemable bullion? It

Uncle Sam would do this gold certificates would be at a premium all over the world. Every body would know that the amount of gold certificates issued was just equal to the amount of gold bullion set apart in the treasury for their redemption.

The demand for redemption would be very small, and would call for the coinage of only a small part of the bullion. Then Uncle Sam's gold certificates would take the place of heavy gold coin in every place, and the gateways to the financial world would be through every port where Uncle Sam owns the earth.

The business of the country does not call for gold coin. All any person wants to know (even the money hoarder) is that he is sure that the gold is at all times within his reach if he has the certificates to put up.

Uncle Sam has been creating confidence of the whole world as to his financial ability. Such a standard has been accomplished because of our material wealth and because the current of gold is coming this way. And all this has been accomplished during a hundred years of almost a money famine. To be sure there was a little let up when gold was discovered in California and Australia. But then the world was so hungry for more money that the relief did not last long.

Now that the large increase in the production of gold has given business interests a boom, it has diminished the material value of money. The fineness and weight of a gold dollar has not changed, but some how or other the wood chopper and stock raiser is benefited to the disadvantage of the money lender within the last ten years. LAW DECISIONS

Steamship Companies—Breach of Contract: In a suit against a steamship company for landing plaintiff and his employees at a point in Alaska short of their destination, whereby he was compelled to remain for some time at that point, and to furnish an outfit and supplies to take him to his destination, the amount of his own and the party's living expenses at the point where he was landed, and the cost of the supplies and the outfit, were proper elements of damage. An ice blockade, preventing the port from being reached, was not an act of God, excusing the breach of the contract to carry by the steamship company. 70 Pacific Rep (Washington, Judge Mount). 1106.

Natives of Porto Rico—Right to Enter United States: A native of Porto Rico did not become a citizen of the United States by virtue of the treaty of Paris, or Act of April 12, 1900, providing for the government of the islands, and is subject to all the provisions of law regulating the admission of aliens into the United States. The petitioner in this case was therefore excluded from admission into the United States upon the ground that she was liable to become a public charge. 118 Federal Rep. (New York, Judge Lacombe) 941.

Salvage—Services Entitled to Compensation: A steamship which went to the rescue of a distressed ship in response to her signals, and after attempts to take her in tow proved unsuccessful because of the breaking of the tow line, proceeded to port, and dispatched word to the tug company for relief, also at the request of the master of the imperiled ship, is entitled to a salvage reward for her services, as are also her officers and crew in so far as they contributed to the final rescue. 118 Federal Rep. (Washington, Judge Hawley) 954.

Specific Performance—Contract to Make Gift: One since deceased came to the home of a dressmaker, and promised her that if she would give up her business and stay with such person as maid and companion for the rest of her life, she would give her certain stock. The stock was never delivered during the life of the deceased person, and it was held that the dressmaker, on performance of the contract, is entitled to specific performance of the contract, and that the executors of the deceased person's estate can be compelled to deliver the stock. 79 New York Supplement (Judge Glidderidge) 496.

Railroads—Trespasser on Tracks: The evidence showed that persons had been accustomed for 20 years to pass over a railroad bridge; that there was at each end of the bridge a notice to keep off; that the president of the railroad company refused to allow a plank to be laid on the bridge to accommodate foot passengers. Held, that the bridge was not a "traveled place," within the statute providing that failure to give signals at such a place is negligence, and a person receiving an injury while walking on such a bridge cannot recover damages. 43 Southeastern Rep. (South Carolina, Judge Gary) 22.

Damages—Loss of Fingers: A verdict of $7,000 was rendered in Brooklyn, N. Y. this week in favor of a plaintiff who lost four fingers on her left hand. The suit was based on the fact that the floor in the factory was so covered with oil that the girl slipped against the machinery which severed her fingers. The attorney who appeared for the plaintiff made part of his summing up to the jury consist of a lyric describing the beauties of a woman's hand.

In The Field Of Sport

Opposition to the game of football, based on its dangerous features, has led to the drafting a petition to the intercollegiate rules committee from seventy preparatory schools, calling for a change in the present rules. The schools are representatives of the best institutions of both east and west, and the suggestions made will probably have weight with the committee.

In the petition, which is signed by the principals and headmasters of the schools, the present objectionable and dangerous features are only referred to. Detailed mention is considered unnecessary as the subject has been taken up on many occasions, and the arguments are familiar.

All that is asked is that the committee take the matter under advisement, and deal with it as may seem best. No remedy or alteration is suggested.

Three of the leading Chicago football schools are represented among the signers, and the fact that all of the schools are of such general prominence may lead to some action on the part of the committee on rules. There is a possibility that changes may be made applicable only to games of preparatory standard, and the intercollegiate rules allowed to remain as they are.

Fred Hall of Chicago university is again the subject of talk among the state baseball men. The cities talked of as most practicable are Marinette, Oshkosh, Fond du Lac, Appleton, Kaukauna, and Green Bay. Their location is in compact circuit, and they are well known as good baseball towns, capable of supporting a team throughout a season. Kaukauna, the smallest city of the list, has been canvassed, and appears to be able to maintain a stock company, so little fear is felt for the others.

Graduate Manager Kilpatrick of the University of Wisconsin and W. H. Ligner, president of the A. A. W., have been in correspondence in regard to the annual meet of the latter organization in Milwaukee. It is probable that the difficulties which have of late been engendered between them may reach a satisfactory adjustment and the Badger track team will be entered. The Milwaukee indoor meet takes place on March 7 this year.

F. C. McCutcheon, the well known athletic manager of the University of Iowa, is the sponsor of a novel football gridiron which may be suggested to the intercollegiate committee. The idea is the use of a field of football shape, of the present width in the middle, but tapering toward both ends. The length may also be slightly lengthened. The arguments advanced in favor of this change are that it will bring every part of the field in direct view of the spectators. It will also reduce the possibility of long runs, and will force the teams to play more compact. Line bucking formations. Touchdowns would be almost necessarily the result of line smashes.

A six-club of Wisconsin is again the subject of talk among the state baseball men. The cities talked of as most practicable are Marinette, Oshkosh, Fond du Lac, Appleton, Kaukauna, and Green Bay. Their location is in compact circuit, and they are well known as good baseball towns, capable of supporting a team throughout a season. TRADE MOVEMENTS

Statistical returns of domestic trade movements in rivers and canals in the United States have been made the subject of monthly reports in the Summary of Internal Commerce, issued by the Treasury Bureau of Statistics for the year 1902. A large proportion of this information was gathered from the engineers in charge of river and harbor improvements under the auspices of the war department. In other cases state authorities and transportation companies have furnished data from which the results have been tabulated.

Among the streams of the United States the traffic of the Monongahela river is possibly the neatest, owing to the prominence of coal trade. For the 12 months ending with December 1902, the total coal traffic passing through Lock No. 3, in addition to the quantity in the first and second pools, was reported as amounting to 9,109,002 tons. This may be compared with the total amount of coal shipped from domestic ports on the great lakes to other domestic ports during the year 1902, amounting to 9,632,866 net tons. The total Monongahela freight movement, in both directions, reached a total of 9,636,636 tons in 1902.

The point of largest recorded traffic on the Ohio, after leaving Pittsburgh, is that of Davis Island Dam, a short distance below Pittsburgh. This dam, both in construction and operation, is one of the country's noteworthy achievements of engineering talent. It affords the coal and iron trade of this portion of the country deep-water navigation on which to accumulate the products of the mines and industries to be floated down the Ohio river whenever a sufficient depth of water is available. The total tonnage passing this point during 1902, as reported by the engineer in charge, was 3,873,902 tons. The month of the largest business was July, when 1,123,93 tons were shipped.

Another point at which the traffic on the Ohio is gauged is at Louisville Ky. Here the Ohio river trade passes either through the locks of the Louisville and Portland canal, or over the falls of the Ohio. In case that the water is of sufficient depth; so that the movement of these two channels gives the total traffic at this point for a given period. For the 12 months ending with December 1902, the traffic through the canal amounted to 1,234,422 tons, and that over the falls of the Ohio to 763,551 tons, making a grand total of 1,997,973 tons.

THE STATE PAPER

The question as to whether Milwaukee or Madison receive the honor of having the state paper should not enter into the controversy now waging in Madison. It is not a question whether the Evening Wisconsin or the Wisconsin State Journal have done the most for the promoting of the present administration, but whether the best interests of the people of the state can be served by removing the paper. The State Journal has the prior right to the title an dits emoluments. It is one of the oldest, if not the oldest, republican daily in the state and it should not be turned down at the present time to please any clique of men who are displeased with what may have appeared in its columns. With the state capitol located at Madison the official paper should be there too. If the State Journal has not pleased the administration by its treatment of Senator Spooner in supporting him for re-election it should not be counted against it at the present time. Editor Wilder is a thorough gentleman and in this fight that is being made against him and his paper and he has the support of the Gazette.

ENGLAND'S PAPERS

An English publication charges its own government with having proposed the Venezuelan alliance with Germany. This may ease the feeling of bitterness against Germany which pervades England but it will not make matters any more pleasant for the ministry. The significant fact is that this exposure is said to have been forced by Germany, which was somewhat disturbed by the anti-German feeling manifest in the United States.

CONGESTED FREIGHT

In abandoning its twenty-hour trains and restoring the slower time schedule for its passenger business between Chicago and the East, as one means of relieving the congestion of freight, the Pennsylvania system seeks, as every corporation should seek, "the greatest good of the greatest number" of the number of people it serves, and at the same time relieves itself of an outlay yielding no adequate returns except in the way of advertising.

JUDGE DAY

William H. Day will be the sixth justice of the supreme court appointed from Ohio. Minnesota is one of the twenty-one states from which no such appointment has ever been made. Of course locality should only be lightly considered in making such appointments; but this does not prevent the Pioneer Press from rising to remark that Minnesota's supply of judicial timber is such that if a call should be made for another supreme justice she will have no difficulty in furnishing a suitable candidate.

JOY OF MISSOURI

Congressman Joy of Missouri has introduced a bill for the immediate construction of twenty-five new battleships. If the United States is to outrank Germany as a naval power it will have to do some very rapid building in the next few years, but unfortunately we can hardly go at the business of keeping abreast of Germany in such a wholesale fashion. We have the money to get the ships but when we get them we would not have the men. The question of securing a supply of competent officers is the most serious element in the whole naval problem.

THE ORGANIZATION MAN

Those republican leaders, like Mr. Hanna and others, who have held to Mr. Quay as an "organization man," the upholder of "regularity," and therefore to be recognized and admitted to the counsels of the party as a guide and adviser, particularly in disposing of the patronage of Pennsylvania, have a delightful object lesson in the spectacle of Mr. Quay not only blocking the congressional program of the party and thwarting the desires of the president, but also conspiring with democrats to secure the admission of from four to eight new democratic senators. Perhaps they will now awaken to the fact that Quay like Croker, is in politics for "the pocket all the time," and for the pocket only.

NO ONE TO BLAME

No one will be inclined to blame the house committee for turning down the submarine boat proposal with a dull thud, yet if the Holland boat was a valuable naval weapon before the exposure of the attempt to bribe it is just as valuable now. Uncle Sam is apparently in a position where he will either have to do business with a concern whose methods he disapproves or go without his submarines.

PRESS COMMENT

Milwaukee News: A fight over the primary election bill may be contemplated by hostile senators, but at this stage of the game it would be contrary to all the usages of civilized warfare.

Racine Times: Why limit the amount of a man's fortune to $10,000,000. Senator Wellington, when most of us are strong enough to make that much or more? It's a sad blow at our ambition.

Eau Claire Telegram: They can't play horse with Ira Bradford for, like David Harum, he can always "do" the other fellow, and he does not take much time in the "doing" either, as many have learned when the Hon. Ira has turned the force of his ready wit upon them.

Green Bay Gazette: A bill has been introduced at Madison to prevent state officials from taking part in politics in any way before the primary election becomes a law. As that would give the fellows out of office an advantage over those who are in it is not probable that the bill will be passed by those who are in.

Milwaukee Wisconsin: A bill for regulating the use of automobiles which is now before the legislature embodies the requirement that the initials of the owner shall be legibly painted upon the back of each machine. The object of that is easy to see. It is to identify automobiles whose reckless and conscienceless owners have run into people and sought safety in making off. Respectable automobile drivers who recognize this intention of the provision will not object to it.

La Crosse Press: Assemblyman Gilman of Buffalo county, has a bill to give a pharmacist's license to a man who has been selling drugs for twenty-six years without a license. Mr.

While passing laws on the trusts

Gillman, who is, of course, acting in the interest of some special constituent, rightly figures that his friend will not do much more damage even if he gets a license. After experimenting on the helpless public for a quarter of a century the gentleman in question ought to be able to distinguish between carbolic acid and porous plasters.

Racine Journal: The old fashioned custom of the platform being made for the candidate to sit on, or the platform constructed around which all the halo concentrator during the campaign, is to be dispensed with. The primary bill provides hereafter the candidates themselves may make their own platform at Madison with none whatever to say nay. The lessening influence of political parties will be one of the effects, but perhaps that is regarded as one of the necessary reforms coming—the abolition of politics.

Menasha Breeze: If the legislature will adopt the Dudgeon resolution to prevent appointive officers from taking an active part in the caucuses and doing political work while on state pay it will remove a very large part of the objection to a primary election measure. One of the most serious objections raised to that idea is that it makes the mayor and the governor of a state a boss all powerful who can dictate his successor with ease. The Dudgeon rule would prevent that to a large degree. But there is another phase of the primary question and that is the one The Breeze has called attention to, the fact that you cannot make a citizen what he should be by law. Until you can persuade the entire vote to get to the caucuses you cannot work a primary law satisfactorily.

ACTOR-PRIEST IS STAGE MANAGER

RETAINS GOOD HUMOR AT TRYING DRESS REHEARSAL.

JOLLIES UP CHORUS GIRLS

Pours Oil on Troubled Waters, and Insures Prosperous Voyage For H. M. S. Pinafore.

It is rather a novel spectacle to see a priest pacing back and forth on the stage of a theater, hustling chorus girls back behind the wings when their presence is not essential to the successful termination of the love affairs of the principals and then trying to induce these same fair damsels to get onto the stage on schedule time when they are wanted. This unusual sight was afforded at the dress rehearsal Sunday of the performance of Pinafore which is to be given by local talent this evening, and as a stage manager, Rev. Father L. J. Vaughn is certainly a hustler.

At The Rehearsal

When the chorus failed to come in on the first few notes of their song and then wailed, "It's the fault of the orchestra, we can't hear a thing behind the scenes," and the director stormed back at them, "Stop your chattering and never mind your dresses or your hats but look at me," the stage manager said nothing, but there was an amused twinkle in his eye. When the prima donna flatte or the first tenor sharpened and pitiful protest was again made over, the fact that the accompaniment was inaudible and that one could not keep with the piano and still be in tune with the violin, the stage director still maintained a discreet silence. Throughout the persistence of the sailors to take a jig step instead of one suggestive of the traditional horn-pipe and consistent efforts of the principals to talk to the rear of the stage or whisper their sentences at the heads of the orchestra, the actor-priest successfully remembered both his callings.

Priest and Actor

As a priest, his good humor was unfailing and as an actor he never permitted complications to get too badly tangled up. When difficulties had reached a climax and no one knew exactly where anyone else was at, a few words quietly spoken, an expressive wave or two of the hands and order was brought out of chaos.

Order is Produced

Such quiet, good-humored acceptance of the disconcerting tag-ends which are always characteristic of a dress rehearsal of an amateur performance and which generally drive those interested half-wild with exasperation, could not fail to have a beneficent effect on the amateurs. Without an impatient word entrances and exits were ordered over and over again, solos and choruses were repeated until itchy places were somewhat smoothed out and ruffled spirits were calmed down. When the rehearsal was concluded, peace reigned in the ranks of the chorus and there was harmony among the members of the orchestra if not among their instruments. Petty jealousy was crowded out of every feminine heart—of course it never found room in masculine organs—by the all-absorbing purpose to make the cruise of the Pinafore a smooth and happy voyage.

SLIGHT ACCIDENT AT SHADE FACTORY

Frank Schimerling, an Employee, Fell While at Work, Dislocating His Shoulder

Frank Schimerling, an employee at the Hough Porch Shade works met with a painful accident Saturday afternoon in which his left shoulder was dislocated. Schimerling was at work at the factory at 5:30 o'clock being engaged in moving a pile of the wooden slats of which the shades are made. In some manner, which he cannot explain, he slipped and fell, twisting his arm underneath him in such a manner that the shoulder was thrown out of joint. Dr. E. F. Woods attended the injured man whose condition today was quite comfortable.

HELD INTERESTING MEETING

Good Papers Presented Before The Congregational Missionary Societies At the last meeting of the Woman's missionary societies of the Congregational church, held in the church parlors, a program of unusual excellence was presented. The program included a talk on India by Mrs. J. L. Ford, one on the New Work in the Philippines by Mrs. S. B. Lewis and short papers by Mrs. George Butts and Mrs. W. H. Bonesteel. Mrs. C. M. Galletly presented such an interesting paper on "Child Labor in the South," that by request she read it again at the Thursday evening meeting. It was an essay of excellent literary value and broad forceful presentation of the subject. An excellent supper was also served in connection with the meeting.

DENIES COMBINE OF WATER WORKS

W. S. MAXCY SAYS THE REPORT IS UNFOUNDED.

HE SPEAKS WITH AUTHORITY

Is largely interested in Corporation Which Controls Many Plants in the State.

The report that a trust of water works companies is being formed in Wisconsin is a canard. That is the statement of President W. G. Maxcy of the Janesville Water Works company, who declares that any such combination would be impossible without the properties that he controls, and that he has never been approached on any such proposition, and that he would not in any event consider such a prospect, because sentiment, and all financial conditions are hostile to it.

Private Companies

The most important private water works concerns in the state are controlled by the American Water Works company, Mr. Maxcy and his associates, and M. Salmon of Beloit. The only companies not so controlled are those of Green Bay, Superior, Asland, Marshfield, and Fond du Lac.

Trust Scheme

It was at the last-named city that the trust report originated. That property is controlled by Indiana capitalists, and it is stated that the story arises from the fact that the company is making an effort to float an issue of bonds.

YOUNG LADIES AT FIVE O'CLOCK TEA

Friends of Miss Ella Sutherland Were Guests at a Pleasant Social Event.

Twenty young ladies, intimate friends of Miss Ella Sutherland, were charmingly entertained by her mother, Mrs. Q. O. Sutherland, at a five o'clock tea on Saturday afternoon. The guests of honor were Miss Madge Lorance, one of Miss Sutherland's friends who came down with her from the University of Wisconsin to spend a few days, and Miss Cara Sawin, of Troy, N. Y., who is visiting friends in this city.

A delicious three-course supper was served by the hostess, after which a merry evening was spent by the young ladies. Amusement was furnished by a contest in which the guests were required to draw pictures representing the titles of books, afterwards guessing the books represented by the entire collection. The prize for the greatest proficiency in this contest was awarded to Miss Sawin.

RECEIVES SAILING ORDERS

The shipping agents, McCue and Buss, report that the sale of accommodations is lively and that many wish to hear Sir Joseph sing "And I polished the handle of the big front door." They sail again Tuesday night from the vessel's docks at the stage of the Myers Grand at eight sharp. Not often does a regular man-of-war arrive at Janesville and the opportunity to witness such a scene should not be neglected.

DEMAND PROBE FOR RAILROADS

DECLARE RATES ARE TOO HIGH

Object to the Recent Increases in Freight Tariffs on Grain and Grain Products and Ask Interstate Commission to Investigate.

Washington, Feb. 9.—In behalf of the shippers, producers and consumers of Iowa and the West generally a formal protest has been filed with the Interstate commerce commission against the recent general increases in freight tariffs on grain and grain products, dressed meats and other commodities. The papers were filed by Frank T. Campbell, ex-railroad commissioner of Iowa and formerly treasurer of the Gulf & Manitoba railroad. The protest expresses amazement at the "extraordinary and exorbitant demands of corporations for another levy of millions of dollars on the commerce of the country to fill the already overflowing coffers of the millionaire railway magnates of Wall street," and adds:

Large Earnings.

"The railways have partaken more largely of the general prosperity than any other class of property in the United States. Their earnings are largely increased over previous years, net profits and dividends immense, surplus unprecedented. Their stocks doubled in value in the last five years as a result, and there are less railways in the hands of receivers than ever before.

"Freight can be hauled and is being hauled by the railroads one-half cheaper than ten years ago on account of improvements in methods of transportation. The average cost of carrying a ton a mile has been reduced from 1.77 cents in 1883 to less than one-half a cent per ton per-mile in 1900.

"The railroads have already, by a 22 per cent increase in the 1900 classification, more than recouped themselves for the claimed increase in expenses on account of advance in material wages, etc.

Tonnage Increases.

"The increased tonnage of the country, on account of the increase and development of the shipping commodities of the country, promises still larger earnings and dividends.

"The consolidation of the railways of the country and the merger into single noncompeting lines of the great means of transportation are the threatening dangers of the hour. More than one-eighth of the entire mileage of the country was absorbed in various ways into mergers between July 1, 1899, and 1900. The object is to eliminate competition and get rid of weaker lines, which have been a menace to rates. This new demand for advanced rates is but the legitimate outgrowth of the merger system, by which immense blocks of largely watered stocks have been thrown upon the market with the promise of paying profitable returns in the future."

The protest urges that the Interstate commerce commission require the corporations to open their books to the inspection of the commissioners to show whether the demand is justified, whether increased earnings do not largely exceed increased expenses, and charges the traffic managers with juggling with the figures of the operating expenses. The committee will give a hearing in this city the latter part of this month on the subject of these advances.

WEEK'S PROGRAM.

Forecast of Proceedings in Congress for the Present Week.

Washington, Feb. 9.—All indications point to the conclusion of the debate on the statehood bill in the senate this week. If the plans of the Republican leaders who oppose the statehood bill are put into effect the committee on territories will bring in a substitute bill early in the week, providing for consolidation and the admission of two states. This will probably not be done, however, unless assurance can be secured that the full Republican vote can be obtained for the consolidation. If this plan does not take shape Senator Quay is likely to press his statehood amendment on the agricultural appropriation bill, and a test of strength would ensue. The vote on this amendment will be very close if taken. Monday the District of Columbia appropriation bill will be taken up. An effort also will be made during the week to secure consideration of the Cuban reciprocity treaty. A part of the time next Saturday will be devoted to eulogies on the lives of deceased members of the house.

The house yesterday held a memorial session in honor of Senator William J. Sewall and Representative Joshua S. Salmon of New Jersey.

Missrs. Graff and Warner of Illinois were among the speakers. Chairman Repburn of the committee on Interstate and foreign commerce submitted the report of the conferees on the department of commerce and labor bill, and it was ordered to be printed. This is District of Columbia day in the house. Beginning Tuesday the appropriation bills are both on the calendar. The former probably will be considered first.

A special rule will be required for the consideration of the naval bill, as it contains a considerable amount of new legislation (especially that for increasing the number of officers in the service), which is deemed vital, and unless a special rule is adopted all new legislation would be subject to a point of order. Friday is session day, but if other things press the leaders may decide not to give up the day to this class of business. The friends of the currency bill are still insistent on time for consideration of their bill, but the chances for it are growing more slim.

To Join Law Firm.

Washington, Feb. 9.—Speaker David B. Henderson, who will cease to be a member of the house when the Fifty-seventh Congress adjourns sine die, has decided to enter a prominent law firm in New York. It is understood the firm is that of Simpson, Thatcher & Barnum, and that the speaker will give his attention to its Washington business, his long service in the house and his influence making him in this direction a strong acquisition for the firm, of which ex-Speaker Thomas B. Reed was a member. While General Henderson does not intend to abandon his residence in Dubuque, he will be, for the next three or four years at least, located in New York or Washington for the greater part of the time. The change is to be an extremely profitable one for Speaker Henderson.

No Alarm Over China.

Washington, Feb. 9.—Officials of the state department declare that no advices have recently been received from Mr. Conger, United States minister to China, which warrant serious apprehension that the Boxer outrages of 1900 are to be repeated, as has been predicted by Dr. Robert Colman, Jr., who was for many years physician to Li Hung Chang. Mr. Conger united with the diplomatic representatives of the other powers at Pekin recently in protesting against the installation in important positions of Chinese dignitaries who were active in the Boxer uprising. On more than one occasion missionaries in the interior provinces have reported to Mr. Conger that there is much unrest. Naturally they have been quick to apprehend danger.

District Appropriations.

Washington, Feb. 9.—The senate committee on appropriations reported the District of Columbia appropriation bill. Increases amounting to $1,645,435 have been made, making the total $9,396,000. A provision has been incorporated in the bill allowing an advance of $10,000,000 to be made to the district by the treasury to meet general expenses of the district, upon which interest at 2 per cent is to be paid.

Indiana Man Gets Place.

Washington, Feb. 9.—Fibert Roth of New York has resigned as chief of the forestry division, general land office, to return to the forestry bureau of the department of agriculture. H. H. Jones of Indiana, the present assistant chief, has been selected as chief of the division.

Deaths From Plague.

Washington, Feb. 9.—United States Consul Kaiser at Mazatlan, Mexico, has advised the state department that the total death from plague to Feb. 1 is 200 and that the total number of cases to date is 260.

New Asylum Meets.

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 9.—Dr. Glenn of Cass county is to be appointed superintendent of the asylum for the insane at Kankakee. While there is no official confirmation the story seems to have some foundation.

Found Dead and Standing.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Feb. 9.—Standing upright the body of Mrs. Julia E. Colgrave, a widow who lived alone, was discovered in her home. The body faced the back door and held an empty coal scuttle in one hand.

Cincinnati Has $75,000 Fire.

Cincinnati, O., Feb. 9.—The building occupied by the Frank Unruh cigar box factory at the southwest corner of Seventh and Clifton streets was entirely destroyed by fire. Loss $75,000.

Consul J. H. Carroll Is Dead.

Paris, Feb. 9.—Consul General Gowdy has been informed that John H. Carroll, United States consul at Cadiz, Spain, died of consumption at Mentone, where he was on leave of absence.

Orders More Car Ferries.

EARTH ROCKS IN FOUR STATES

ROARING NOISE SCARES MANY

Tops of Tall Buildings in St. Louis Sway With the Motion of the Ground, Accompanied by Sound Like Passing Railroad Train.

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 9.—Missouri and southern Illinois were shaken by an earthquake between 6:20 and 6:25 o'clock last evening. Two distinct shocks were felt, and both were accompanied by a roaring noise like that made by a railroad train. The first shock was of almost twenty seconds' duration, and was especially severe in towns in the southern part of Illinois.

The tops of tall office buildings in this city oscillated, much as they do in a high wind, while in the residence districts windows were rattled and furniture made to move. No actual damage was reported anywhere in the city or suburbs, though many persons were frightened.

The shock was more severe in East St. Louis than in this city, while sharply felt at Belleville, Edwardsville and Alton, on the east side and at Clayton, Kirkwood and Pacific, west of the river.

The second shock followed inside of two minutes after the first, and was slight and of short duration. Both seismic waves were from southeast to southwest.

Causes a Panic.

Something of a panic was caused here by the phenomenon. The first shock badly frightened the inhabitants of the residence districts, who rushed out of their houses in terror, fearing that some great disaster was imminent or must have occurred.

At Farmington, Mo., two distinct shocks of earthquake were felt. The first was the more severe and caused the windows in the houses to rattle. The second was not quite so severe. The waves lasted about thirty seconds, each, and seemed to run east and west.

At Hannibal, Mo., two distinct earthquake shocks were felt at 6:20. The vibration was from north to south. It was sufficient to cause the furniture in houses to rock.

At Pacific, Mo., three perceptible waves of earthquake shook furniture and bric-a-brac, and caused the windows in houses to rattle.

Severe at Richview.

Richview, Ill., Feb. 9.—A severe earthquake shock was felt throughout southern Illinois at about 6:30 last night. The vibration lasted fully half a minute, shaking doors and windows. The town of Anna reports a very severe shock. Telephone messages from all parts of the surrounding country show it was general, and especially in the southeastern part of the state.

Roaring Sound.

Harrisburg, Ill., Feb. 9.—One of the heaviest earthquake shocks felt here in years occurred about 6:30 last night. It seemed to pass from southwest to northeast, and began with a sound like distant thunder. Clocks were stopped and the houses shook.

Two Shocks.

Marion, Ill., Feb. 9.—This city was thrown into excitement by two very severe earthquake shocks, which lasted for some time. A roaring noise like that of a railroad train was heard. People were frightened and ran to the streets for safety.

Indiana Feels the Shock.

Evansville, Ind., Feb. 9.—Earthquake shocks were reported throughout southern Indiana, as well as here, about 6:30 last night. At Belpoint town some of the colored people fell to their knees in prayer during their fright.

Rocks Building.

Lawrenceville, Ind., Feb. 9.—A distinct earthquake shock was felt, lasting about thirty seconds. Two-story buildings swayed and shook, and in some instances the floors seemed to rise and sink with a swaying motion.

Many Are Frightened.

Waukegan, Ill., Feb. 9.—Two earthquake shocks were felt at this place shaking furniture, doors, and windows, and frightening many people. The vibration lasted about thirty seconds.

Moves From North to South.

Carlo, Ill., Feb. 9.—An earthquake shock was felt here last evening. The seismic wave seemed to move from north to south.

IN KENTUCKY.

Shock Felt There but It Is Short and Not Violent.

Cloverport, Ky., Feb. 9.—An earthquake shock started a number of Cloverport's citizens about 6:30 last night. No damage was done and many people of the town did not know the shock had occurred.

Paducah, Ky., Feb. 9.—A slight earthquake shock occurred here. No damage was done and the duration of the vibrations was very brief.

Henderson, Ky., Feb. 9.—An earthquake shock was distinctly felt here. It passed from west to east and lasted two minutes.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 9.—A slight earthquake shock was felt here. The vibrations caused windows to rattle, but no damage was done.

Will Act With Dawes Commission. Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 9.—Ex-Gov. Stanley of Kansas has accepted the position on the Dawes commission made vacant by the death of ex-Senator Dawes.

HURRICANE AND TIDAL WAVE KILL

FOOD AND WATER ARE LACKING

All Means of Subsistence is Destroyed During the Accompanying Storm—French and Italian Warships Have Gone to the Rescue.

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 9.—A hurricane and tidal wave which swept over the Society Islands and the Pua-motu group, eighty islands in all, on Jan. 13, cost the lives of at least 1,000 human beings.

The loss of life was accompanied by an almost complete destruction of all means of subsistence on the islands. All food was swept away and sources of fresh water destroyed. French and Italian warships carried food and fresh water to the devastated islands as soon as news of the disaster reached Tahiti.

The storm continued several days, reaching its maximum strength between Jan. 14 and Jan. 16. While from the meager news received at Tahiti up to the time of the sailing of the Mariposa it is estimated that 1,000 of the islanders lost their lives, it is feared that the number was really greater.

Five Hundred Drown.

On Hikueru island, where 1,000 inhabitants were engaged in pearl diving, nearly one half were drowned. On an adjacent island 100 more were washed out to sea. The islands of Makokau and Hao are depopulated. Conservative estimates at Tahiti place the number of islands visited by tidal wave and hurricane at eighty. All of them are under the control of the French governor at Tahiti.

The French government upon receipt of news of the disaster took prompt measures to relieve the survivors, and dispatched two warships, the Durante and Zelee, with fresh water and provisions. The Italian man of war Calabria accompanied the two French vessels on their errand of mercy.

Eight Whites Are Lost.

As far as is known, eight white persons were among the drowned. Included in these were Alexander Chamberlain, N. P. Plunkett of Oakland, T. D. Donnelly, formerly a fireman on the steamship Australia, and the local agent of C. Copenrath, a merchant of Papeete. Added to this number was an unknown woman who committed suicide from fright.

The 400 survivors brought by the steamer Excelsior to Papeete gained the ship's side by swimming three and four miles from the island. The steamer Elmeo, though badly damaged by the storm, also brought off as many persons as could swim to its sides, this steamer, like the Excelsior, being unable to run close to the shores because of the violence of the ocean swells, which continued to run abnormally high for a week after the tidal disturbances.

AGED MAN SHOOTS HEAD OFF

Ends Life When Accused of Attempting to Poison Son.

Rush City, Feb. 9.—Mike Rumpel, an old resident of this section, committed suicide by nearly blowing his head off with a shotgun. He had been accused of attempting to poison his son George by putting a quantity of carbolic acid in some medicine. The son had an analysis made, which revealed the carbolic acid. Previous to being taken to jail Rumpel shot half of his face off. Death resulted in a few hours.

TWO ARE KILLED IN RACE RIOT

Clash Between Whites and Blacks in Georgia Results Fatally.

Waycross, Ga., Feb. 9.—A race riot occurred at McDonald between two white men on one side and a crowd of negroes on the other, the result being two negroes killed, one mortally wounded and eight others badly wounded, among them three women.

Deputies Kill Horse Thieves.

Vintra, I. T., Feb. 9.—In a fierce battle between United States deputy marshals and a band of horse thieves at Bluejacket, I. T., two of the band were instantly killed and another surrendered to the officers.

SIMPLE REMEDY FOR CATARRH

Just Breathe Hyomei Four Times a Day and Be Cured.

If a few years ago some one had said you can cure catarrh by breathing air charged with a healing balsam, the idea would have been ridiculed and it remained for R. T. Booth that eminent investigator, to discover in Hyomei this method of cure.

Hyomei has performed the most miraculous cures of catarrh and is today recognized by leading members of the medical profession as the only advertised remedy that can be relied upon to do just what it claims.

The complete outfit of Hyomei costs but $1.00 and consists of an inhaler, a medicine dropper and a bottle of Hyomei.

Breathe Hyomei through the inhaler for a few minutes four times a day and it will cure the worst case of catarrh. It soothes and heals the mucous membrane of the air passages, prevents irritation, and effects a complete and lasting cure.

The treasurer of the American Life Insurance Company, J. S. Nugent, of New York city, writes, "Hyomei has completely cured my daughter of catarrh from which she has been a sufferer for years."

In Janesville there are scores of well known people who say they have been cured of catarrh by Hyomei. If it does not cure you the People's Drug Company will return the money you paid for Hyomei. This is the strongest evidence that can be offered as to their faith in the remedy. People's Drug Co.

THE INDIAN RUNNER DUCK.

Some of the Strong Points of the Leghorn of the Duck Family.

The Indian runner duck is what might be called an all around practical duck. The general makeup of these ducks seems to be unlike many others, inasmuch as they have so many points in their favor.

First, the color and plumage are very attractive, being of a fawn color mixed with white, the drakes having a steel blue cap, with a distinct white line running from the eye around the back of the head to the eye opposite, the pure white neck, the fawn colored breast and back, tapering off with white in wing flights and tail. They are strong and erect, alert in every motion and very hardy.

Second, their laying qualities are such that they have been called and are known today as the Leghorn of the duck family. One breeder claims for one individual duck a record of 192 eggs per year.

It is very fascinating for one to collect eggs from these ducks after once starting to lay, and they generally start in with me in February. It is a common occurrence to bring in just as many eggs as there are ducks.

Third, as a market duck they grow very rapidly, and while they consume much less food in proportion than the Pekin, at ten weeks old will dress ten pounds to the pair, and in comparing the pair I find the runner smaller.

Success with these ducks, like everything else, depends solely on feed and care. In the center of an acre lot adjoining my place is a pond fed by springs about a hundred feet across.

On the shore of this pond is my duckhouse, where the ducks are wintered. In the breeding season I select my breeders, putting one drake with every five ducks, and as soon as the ice is out of the pond the ducks are allowed the use of it through the day, but are called into their house for supper at night, thus making it easy to collect the eggs in the morning.

One of the most essential things in raising ducks is that they have dry quarters to sleep in and pure air to breathe. Little attention need be given to making tight houses as long as they are kept dry at night. They will stand some very cold weather. For their bedding I use plenty of lawn clippings and clover hay, and it is surprising to see how much a flock of fifty will consume through the winter.—Walter E. DeLano in American Poultry Journal.

Fine White Rocks.

The illustration shows a pair of White Plymouth Rocks owned by D. T. Roots, Connersville, Ind. They were first cock and first hen at recent Cleveland show. The picture is from the Indiana Poultry Journal.

To Keep Hens at Home.

If you want hens to stay at home and not fly over the fence, you must make home attractive to them, and the best way to make home attractive is to keep the hens busy. A lot of grain scattered where it is hard to find will generally keep chickens busy. This is better than cropping the wings. All the smaller breeds love to fly up on a fence, look around and then fly down on the wrong side, especially if the wrong side is the garden. But they can never fly over a fence to get back. They will run along the fence and try to pass through a two inch mesh or between close palings, but they never so much as look up to see how high the fence is. In short, a hen in the matter of wandering will never do that which she ought to do. If she is in when she ought to be out, you have to catch her and throw her over the fence. As long as they can find grain that they think they have tried to hide from them hens will stay at home and work.—Farm and Ranch.

Turkey House.

Not many years ago I was very anxious for a house for my turkeys, an open shed rather than a house as I wanted it open on the south side. Now I have almost decided that turkeys are healthier for roosting in the open air. I agree with Mr. Matteson that we must not pamper our breeding stock too much if we desire healthy offspring. If our turkeys will roost in the trees in a place somewhat protected from the storms, they will come through the winter in good shape if they are as strong and healthy as they should be, and our poult next spring will be hardy and if kept free from lice and fed carefully will be easily raised.—Margaret Cavanaugh Daily in Poultry Success.

Things to Prevent.

Hundreds of chicks lose their lives every year by being huddled into corners and smothered to death. In building a coop look out for the corners. Keep the coop neat and clean, the floor covered with sand, sawdust or thatch. Once a week sprinkle a little chloride of lime on the floor and cover with chaff. Tobacco stems chopped and sprinkled over the floors are a good thing. Cold rains, wet cold grass after rains, early morning dews, etc., are causes of enlarged crops, constipation and bowel diseases in young chicks. Keep the chicks shut up until the grass is dry.

IRWIN TURNED DOWN

Kentucky Congressman Defeated Because He Snored.

His Successor Elected on a Platform That Requires Him to Stay Awake While Representing His Constituents.

To sleep in church has long been considered a perfectly legitimate occasion for physical recreation among some people. The name of the good man or woman who seeks rest from weary sermons in slumber is legion. From time immemorial the practice has been countenanced by our very best people, and although it is in the highest degree reprehensible it has been smiled rather than frowned upon.

Kentuckians are very much like their fellow citizens of less distinguished commonwealths. As a general proposition they don't object to a quiet little snooze in church or in the halls of congress, but they could not forgive one of their illustrious sons who was accused of snoring in the dignified house of representatives at Washington.

"Irwin snored!" So the voters of the Fifth Kentucky congressional district have formally decided, and it has cost him his seat in congress. Representative H. S. Irwin was defeated in the election November 4, and the weightiest charge against him was that he went to sleep during sessions of the august but sometimes tedious body to which Kentucky had elected him.

Swager Sherley, his successful opponent, now faces a fearful fate. He must sit through all manner of long drawn out debates in the house and listen to hour long oratory with wide open eyes. The solace of the tired congressman—a quiet nap in his seat—is denied to Swager. He is elected on a platform that requires him to stay awake.

There are knowing persons in the Fifth Kentucky district who would rather be Irwin the defeated than Sherley the elected under the conditions.

When the campaign became hot in the district the opponents of Irwin circulated a story that he had been accustomed to fall asleep in his seat in the house. Was that the kind of a man

Mary Black was thrown directly in front of the car and was dragged for a considerable distance. The other members of the party escaped with cuts and bruises.

HYDROPHOBIA AMONG SHEEP

Widespread Epidemic Is Feared by Farmers in Wisconsin.

Kenosha, Wis., Feb. 9.—Farmers residing in the town of Bristol fear an epidemic of hydrophobia among the sheep of the county. A short time ago a mad dog passed through this section of the county and bit a number of sheep. In one flock, belonging to William Stevens, five sheep already have gone mad and, breaking from their pastures, invaded other flocks. As soon as possible the afflicted sheep were killed, but it is feared that thousands of sheep have been bitten. In some cases other animals were attacked and it is feared that the infection is widespread.

LEAF TOBACCO MEN IN SESSION

Janesville Dealers Meet to Discuss Many Questions of Importance to Their Work.

The Janesville Leaf Tobacco dealers' association held a regular meeting Saturday night, there was a good attendance and several important matters were disposed of.

A majority of those present were in favor of forming a branch of the National Retail Dealers' Protective Association and the payment of the annual dues was voted.

Workers Wanted

The secretary stated that on account of the scarcity of help in some of the warehouses of the city he had placed advertisements in several of the outside papers, including the Monroe Times, Rockford Star, Beloit Free Press and Jefferson County Union and that a number of girls had been secured by these means. About one hundred more girls are needed to complete the forces in this city.

Many Will Attend

The annual meeting of the Wisconsin Tobacco Growers' association was taken up and discussed and many of those present signified their intention of attending the meeting. A vote of thanks was extended to John Bouman and E. M. Calkins who went to Chicago to attend the meeting, and that organized the National Retail Dealers' Protective association.

Wage Question

Wages paid in the warehouses and the question of procuring better seed for the growers were taken up and discussed. Sanford Soverhill was chosen to bring the subject of seed before the state association and see what can be done in regard to legislation in this matter. In order that Wisconsin may hold her present position at the head of the leaf growing states a better class of seed must be secured.

MCLEAN ADVERSE HEARING ENDED

Closed on Saturday Evening, After Two Days of Exhaustive Examination.

Until February twenty-first the adverse hearing of Alderman J. B. McLean was adjourned on Saturday afternoon. This hearing had taken up the better part of two days and while it was searching in its nature and the examination very strict no immediate results are expected until after the complaint is made and placed on file.

Questions relating to the expenditure of city money, of money paid to McLean on assigned orders were all thoroughly threshed over and when the Alderman was too closely questioned he had either forgotten or had never known. The burning of his account books of the stone crusher and his admission that many prominent citizens received loads of stone that were never paid for were among the chief bits of evidence brought out.

WIT AND WISDOM.

Is a debt ever honest?

A good laugh will often put liver full out of business.

The flattery that appeals to us must be cloaked as deference.

Jealousy is not so much a heart disorder as it is a case of out-of-date liver.

There is always some hope for a wretched old sinner, but a fool is beyond pardon.

When a woman is in love she feels elated and skittish, but a man feels depressed and sorry.

The shrug of a good woman's shoulders has ruined the reputation of many a one who was only unfortunate.

When a fellow is in love he knows that something is the matter with him, but he is too much ashamed to describe his symptoms.

It is easier to tell a girl the kind of man not to marry than to find the right string to her bow that will set well in the matrimonial knot.

If a man or woman had to give a written statement of why they invested in matrimony, many would do the disappearing act rather than face the footlights.

There is nothing like a few aches and pains to stir up a conscience. Some people become so virtuous on a deathbed that it would be a pity to keep heaven waiting for them.

People who are ripe for heaven are generally too overripe for this world to be palatable.—Kate Thysen Mass.

FIGS AND THISTLES.

Repro is apt to be relished in proportion as it is not reliable.

Life's improvements depend on the profits we make of its reproofs.

A lie is a loan on which you will never cease to pay manifold interest.

God is likely to answer our prayers for others out of our own pocketbooks.

It's no use picking the mote out of your brother's eye with the hatchet of hatred.

Some men never make any mistakes because they never make any moves.

When the man is lost in the parson men will not be saved by the preaching.

It is better to send a good name to fore us than to leave a large fortune behind.

Perhaps the deepest pain of hell will be the knowledge of the love we have missed.

Morality is religion in relation to man, religion is morality in relation to God.

Forgiveness without forgetting is like a pardon without a stay of punishment.

Though sin break but the link of one virtue the chain is thus severed.—Rum's Horn.

UNTRROUBLED DREAMS.

Every barber in the country is going to turn over a new leaf and hereafter use a clean towel on each customer.

Rudyard Kipling will during the ensuing year confine himself to writing poems intended for the promotion of peace and concord.

Every American girl whose father is rich will for one year wear a button bearing this motto: "No titled foreigner need apply."

All German professors have entered into an agreement to refrain during the coming year from troubling the world by the discovery of new germs.

The theatrical managers have agreed among themselves to produce no plays during the year 1903 that they would hate to have seen by their own daughters.

The boodle aldermen throughout the country will begin the New Year by turning it all into the conscience funds, thus enabling the American people to get along for the next twenty years without paying taxes.

Handmade Philosophy.

The whistling girl throws stones at the crowing hen.

We despise the dealer who is hoarding coal—but we envy him.

Some events pass into history. Others pass into historical novels.

Many a woman puts a No. 6 foot in a No. 2 shoe and goes to a meeting where she may softly weep over the fair females of China.

Some men argue, before marriage, that they are insane with love. After the other confirms the diagnosis, we calculate the deduction.

Some man is training his pet dog who is teaching her to earn always carry on a some one else.

As It Strikes 'Em.

The "kickoff" in an American football match is something to see and remember. When the whistle blows, says a writer in the London Magazine, the padded and leather-covered gladiators, sturdy and ferocious, spring forward like wild animals. Opponents leap upon each other, the ball is fiercely fought for and the man who carries it is often borne to the ground beneath a pile of struggling contestants.

Big Electric Power Plant.

The Feather River Power company, incorporated in San Francisco with a capital stock of $5,000,000, is about to install an electric power plant twenty miles above Oroville, where a tunnel over 12,000 feet in length has been driven and a dam constructed. At least 20,000 horse power will be transmitted to San Francisco at a high voltage.

A Wise Distinction.

Chinese doctors are very particular about the distinction between physicians and surgeons. A Chinese gentleman was struck by an arrow, which remained fast in his body. A surgeon was sent for and, it is said, broke off the protruding bit of the arrow, leaving the point imbedded. He refused to extract it, because the case was clearly one for a physician, the arrow being inside the body.
